
Knowledge Management & E-Learning

Guest Editors

Prof. Ian M. Kinchin

*Department of Higher Education
University of Surrey, Guildford, UK
E-mail: i.kinchin@surrey.ac.uk*

Prof. Paulo R. M. Correia

*Escola de Artes, Ciências e Humanidades
Universidade de São Paulo, SP, Brazil
E-mail: prmc@usp.br*

Contents

Special Issue on “Concept mapping and pedagogic frailty”

- 254 Editorial: Pedagogic frailty and concept mapping
Ian M. Kinchin and Paulo R. M. Correia
- 261 Do no harm: Risk aversion versus risk management in the context of pedagogic frailty
Julie A. Hulme and Naomi E. Winstone
- 275 Mapping the emotional journey of teaching
Emma Jones
- 295 Pedagogic frailty: A concept analysis
Ian M. Kinchin
- 311 Russian university teachers’ ideas about pedagogic frailty
Svetlana Nikolaevna Kostromina, Daria Sergeevna Gnedykh and Ekaterina Aleksandrovna Ruschack
- 329 Using concept mapping for faculty development in the context of pedagogic frailty
Bárbara de Benito, Alexandra Lizana and Jesús Salinas
- 348 Developing higher-order thinking skills with concept mapping: A case of pedagogic frailty
Alberto J. Cañas, Priit Reiska and Aet Möllits
- 366 From representing to modelling knowledge: Proposing a two-step training for excellence in concept mapping
Joana G. Aguiar and Paulo R. M. Correia
- 380 Challenges and weaknesses in the use of concept maps as a learning strategy in undergraduate health programs
Enios Carlos Duarte, Ana Claudia Loureiro and Cristina Zukowsky-Tavares
- 392 An exploration into pedagogic frailty: Transitioning from face-to-face to online
Irina Niculescu, Roger Rees and Darren Gash
- 404 Making connections and building resilience: Developing workshops with undergraduates
Julia Anthoney, Rachel Stead and Katie Turney